

Event – New Business Opportunities in Space

24th July 2007

Space is a fast-growing business. Data from satellites of various kinds is finding ever wider applications. ESA and NASA have ambitious plans for new programmes involving human spaceflight. Space tourism is within sight of becoming a serious business.

WEAF is offering its members an opportunity to discuss the latest developments in this one-day conference.

The major players of the space industry will outline new opportunities, SMEs will be able to market themselves, and space tourism companies will outline their plans.

This is a conference for both aviation and space companies, because space tourism blends current space technology with carrying passengers safely, and this requires aviation skills and experience.
